Tips for Finding and Evaluating Information

- Think about where you will find useful, reliable resources that are the best for your topic.

- Use key words to search library catalogue databases and the Internet.

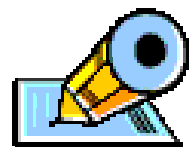

- Follow the links on Internet web sites about your topic.

- Browse bookshelves in the library, articles in magazines, and web sites.

- Write down the title and author or web site address for every source you use.

- Use more than one source to make sure what you find out is true.
